Wed 9 June 11am-12pm AEST	Free to the public Pre-Conference Event #1 Live roundtable: The Future is Feminist - Gender Transformative & Inclusive Development Sharon Bhagwan-Rolls, Shifting the Power Coalition; Flora Vano, ActionAid Vanuatu / Women I Tok Tugetha Network; Lanieta Tuimabu, Fiji Disabled People's Federation, member of the Pacific Disability Forum women's network & Shifting the Power Coalition Gender & Disability Focal Point; Carolyn Kitone, Shifting the Power Coalition. Moderator: Michelle Higelin, ActionAid Australia This session will explore how feminist organisations and women's collectives in the Pacific are shifting the power across the development and humanitarian divide to transform gender relations and drive inclusive, community-led approaches Pacific women leaders will weave together recommendations based on their leadership and work within women's rights and women-led disability organisations across the Pacific region. Participants from the Shifting the Power Coalition in the Pacific will draw on the wisdom and experience from 13 women-led civil society organisations, including disability rights organisations. Established in 2016, today the Shifting the Power Coalition brings together a network of close to 100,000 grassroots, intergenerational and inclusive movements in 7 Pacific Island Forum countries. The event will have a particular focus on how the Coalition is contributing to movement building and engagement in spaces dominated by male decision makers through a unique women-led mechanism that draws on the existing capacity of the Coalition members. The event will showcase the opportunities that women's rights organisations and feminist coalitions offer to strengthen diverse women's voices, agency and decision making in despite the under representation of Pacific Island women in local and national governance spaces including parliament. It will also bring lessons learnt from the 4000-strong Women I Tok Tok Tugetha network in Vanuatu that is building the collective power, voice and agency of Ni-Vanuatu women to drive locally-led solutions and challenge widespread gender equality from within. It will show how young women are organizing to ensure they are no longer left behind in key decision-making processes while making a clear case for flexible and sustained resources to enable women with disabilities to be equipped and empowered to present their recommendations at the decision-making table. The roundtable will also share ActionAid's Gender Transformative Framework for Responding to Climate Change and Disasters as a tool for building consistent approaches to gender equality that value women's localised knowledge, leadership and networks and tackle the harmful gender norms that continue to prevent women's full and equitable participation in society. Free and open to Conference delegates and the general public. Register here - https://us02web.zoom.us/j/84461212693
Wed 9 June 2021 2pm-4.30pm AEST	Free to the public Pre-Conference Event #2 Live roundtable & workshop: Collaborating on Peaceful Futures in Asia and the Pacific Susanne Schmeidl, UNSW Sydney, swisspeace & RDI Network Committee; Tania Miletic, Centre for Peacebuilding, University of Melbourne; Rachael Diprose, University of Melbourne & DSAA Conflict, Justice, Peace and Development Research Group; Anthony Ware; Deakin University & Development Studies Association of Australia (DSAA); James Cox, Peacifica; Patricia Garcia, Institute for Economics and Peace The world is in crisis with the urgent need for creative solutions. The world is less peaceful than it has been in over a decade. Forced displacement of people is at its highest since World War II standing at nearly 80 million, with 26 million people crossing international borders. The Ecological Threat Register established by the Institute for Economics and Peace identifies that over one billion people in 31 countries are unlikely to sufficiently withstand the impact of ecological threats such as climate change, resulting in further displacements by 2050. The Pacific Islands and countries experiencing conflict predicted to be the worst affected. Meanwhile, the COVID-19 pandemic has exacerbated existing problems posed by conflicts, natural disasters, climate change, inequality, and poverty, and geostrategic tensions in the region are shifting, posing new challenges for future inter-state relations. The event will consist of a panel discussion and workshop that will discuss pathways forward for practice and research on peace futures in Asia & the Pacific. It is co-sponsored by the DSAA Conflict, Justice, Peace and Development Research Group. Free and open to Conference delegates and the general public. Register here - https://us02web.zoom.us/j/92989123456
Wed 16 June 1pm-4pm AEST	Exclusive to conference attendees Pre-Conference Event #3 Live workshop: Imagining Feminist Futures After COVID-19: An interactive, virtual workshop Alice Ridge and Jo Pradela, International Women's Development Agency (IWDA) Imagining Feminist Futures After COVID-19 is a project coordinated by IWDA with support from a Steering Group of actors across the feminist movement, including Fiji Women's Rights Movement, Gender at Work and Oxfam International. Through this project we have created a new workshop methodology drawing on futures thinking and feminist approaches to explore how the COVID-19 crisis is changing future trajectories – both positive and negative – for feminist social change towards 2030. In this workshop, participants will engage in a 3-hour interactive, virtual discussion to explore the potential impacts of COVID-19 on trends which are observable today. They will collectively identify feminist futures that could emerge from these trends, and the transformative shifts required to create them. These transformative futures will be shared with conference delegates on Day 2. Max attendees are 25 pax. Exclusive to Conference delegates only. First in, best dressed applies. Conference delegates must register inside the Whova app in Event Whova app > Community > Discussion Topic PC#3: Feminist Futures (Workshop)
Fri 18 June 12pm-1pm AEST	Exclusive to conference attendees Pre-conference Event #4 Live Roundtable: Best practice national SDG governance, policy & planning: SDG momentum matrix indicators Claire Moore, former Australian Senator heavily involved in the Australian Parliamentary Inquiry into the UN SDGs of 2018; Jatna Supriatna, Research Center for Climate Change, University of Indonesia; Claire Brolan, Centre for Policy Futures, The University of Queensland; Chair - Leanne Smith, Whitlam Institute within Western Sydney University The panel will feature the June 2020 research report, 'No One Left Behind: Implementing the Sustainable Development Goals in Australia. An investigation of international best practice in SDG governance' (https://www.whitlam.org/publications/2020/6/17/no-one-left-behind-implementing-the-sustainable-development-goals-in-australia). The June 2020 report's lessons and learnings, and tools, are of enormous benefit to leaders and decision-makers in the broader Asia and Pacific region for accelerating transformative governance and policy pathways to deliver impactful, multi-sectoral sustainable development. No max limit. Exclusive to Conference delegates only. Conference delegates must register inside the Whova app in Events Whova app > Community > Discussion Topic PC#4: Best Practice SDG Planning (Roundtable)

3:00pm-4:00pm AEST	#11 Inclusive Research Methods The Asia Foundation Over the past year, The Asia Foundation (TAF), in partnership with Kore Global and with support from DFAT, has been leading a six-country qualitative research study on Inequalities in Asian Cities. This research has been unique in having the dual objective of documenting the impact of COVID19 on disadvantaged groups living in urban settings, along with an explicit focus of building research capacities and confidence of our country-office staff. In order to do so, TAF worked with research experts from Kore Global to develop tools to guide the development of good quality research and provide researchers with regular one-on-one mentorship. The research process has had a strong emphasis on inclusion and research ethics, and a sizeable learning component. During this session, TAF will share more about our approach to ethical and inclusive research, and key learnings from the past year of implementing research while managing restrictions and challenges due to COVID19.
4:00pm-4:45pm AEST	#12 Networking session You will have the opportunity to meet experts and fellow students in a structured networking session, led by the RDI Student Forum Committee.
