CONGRATULATIONS!

Today is a significant milestone in your higher degree research candidature with the submission of your thesis for examination at the Graduate Research School. The staff of the Graduate Research School and I would like to offer to you the heartiest of congratulations on this occasion. Submitting your thesis not only represents the culmination of all of your hard work over the past few years, it also is a vital contribution to the international research reputation of the University of New South Wales. As one of our talented postgraduate research students we are proud to celebrate with you today and would like to give you a small gift as a memento of the occasion, as well as a photo to share with family and friends.

Congratulations once more on your achievements and thank you for your contributions to UNSW.

With best wishes for your future career.

Yours sincerely,

Professor Laura Poole-Warren
Dean of Graduate Research
